REPORT NO.

1. In early February 1951 MAO Tse-tung, accompanied by CH'EN Po-ta and WANG Chia-hsiang, went to Moscow to discuss the Korean war situation. On 5 March MAO and WANG returned to Peiping with the following seven-point program which was agreed upon in Moscow:
 - a. The Chinese Communists will not give up the war effort in Korea, but will concentrate all of their efforts in continuing the fight.
 - b. The Chinese Communists will draft two-thirds of their militia and will send 500,000 men from the various field armies to the Korean front.
 - c. Should the United States agree to MacArthur's request to bomb targets in Manchuria, the USSR, in accordance with the Sino-Soviet mutual aid agreement and the Sino-Soviet alliance, will have its air force bomb the United States bases in Japan.
 - d. In order to reinforce undermanned garrison units in China resulting from deployment to the Korean front, the Chinese Communists will welcome the stationing of Soviet occupation troops in China.
 - e. In order to consolidate the Korean front, the USSR will organize an international volunteer corps and send them to Korea to cooperate with the Chinese and North Koreans.
 - f. The USSR will send the Chinese some navy and air strength as well as tanks, trucks, fuel and ammunition.
 - g. Large supply bases will be established at important points along the Sino-Soviet border.
2. An extraordinary meeting of the politburo was held immediately after MAO's return.
